

Languages Overview

Last Modified on 12/01/2021 10:21 am MST

Through the Languages feature, you can customize the text in Core's user interface and applications, fields, object types, etc. to display a language of your choosing. This is done by downloading a CSV spreadsheet that contains a list of the user interface text in the default language, adding the applicable translations for that text, then uploading the spreadsheet back into Core. When a user logs in with a default language on their browser that matches a configured translation, Core will automatically match to the browser's default language. If a user's browser is displaying a language that is not configured, Core will display the default language in the user's Core profile.

Important Notes

- Translations are not pre-loaded or automatic. They must be manually entered into the spreadsheet.
- Content that appears in the spreadsheet inside curly brackets is dynamic and should not be translated. If a translation is entered between the curly brackets, that translation will overwrite any dynamic text. For example, if the text Welcome {first} {last} was translated to Bienvenido {primero} {último} in the spreadsheet, the welcome message to users in the UI would display Bienvenido {primero} {último}, instead of Bienvenido John Doe.
- When a user logs in with a default language (e.g. Canadian French) on their browser that matches a configured translation, the Core UI will display in the browser's default language.
- If a user's browser displays an unconfigured language, the UI will display the default language in the user's Core profile.
- If the user's browser is set to an unconfigured language and the user has made no changes to the language preferences in their profile, the default language of US English will display.
- You can select a pre-configured language in a user's profile to choose how the UI and applications will be translated. Note that the default language selected in a user's browser will take precedence.
- If your version of Core contains multiple organizations, translations must be configured for each org.
- Once a new language has been added to Core, it's not possible to delete it; however, you may edit the translations.
- Editing the default language through this feature is not currently supported.
